Old properties may be brownfield sites – properties that are abandoned or underused due in part to concerns about potential contamination. Brownfields can be turned into incredible things, but they should always receive environmental assessments before purchase. In this workshop, learn about the financial and technical help available to those who have big dreams for brownfields.